1. Tihany: There was for a long time a youth camp in Tihany, which was taken over by the Communists. A training unit for "partisans" with 230 to 250 trainees is quartered here at the present. The commandant is a Captain Béla Sárga. Training is primarily in motorcycle driving and messenger service. Java and Csepel motorcycles are being used. On the way to Tihany is a second camp, where about 100 "partisans" are being trained as engineers. The course lasts about four weeks, after which a new group is brought in.
2. Nagykanizsa: Two buildings, a reception building and a guardhouse for the AVH, have been completed at the airfield. Two large hangars have also been built, and the foundations were laid for a number of smaller buildings. All the new construction is in the southeastern corner of the field. This field, although it was not entirely completed, was turned over in the summer of 1951 to the Soviet-Hungarian "Sovzovlet" airline. So far, no Soviet or Hungarian flying units or troops have been stationed here. The size of the airfield is 1,600 m.x 2,000 m.
3. Tapolca: Extensive new building construction is reported at this important Soviet-Hungarian base in the trans-Danube area. Barracks for 18 battalions are being built. A barracks compound has been finished on the north side of the railway, opposite the airfield. It comprises nine 3-story living quarters, 20 x 25 m. each. These barracks are occupied by a Hungarian tank battalion, an artillery "abteilung", and an infantry battalion. Two similar compounds are nearing completion.
4. Pécs: A new artillery barracks is being built in the "Meszes" quarter. The exact extent of the project has not been fully determined, but it appears to be a large project. The civilian population has had to evacuate all of Irányi Street and the houses on the Grainmarket. Many houses near the cadet school have also been commandeered for military quarters. The industrial school and the Jesuit cloisters have also been taken over.

5. Szombathely: The Szombathely air raid defense headquarters have been established in the former Dominican cloisters. Air-raid defense regulations are strictly enforced by military order. The following Hungarian troops are stationed in the city: an AVH security battalion; an anti-aircraft battery at the airfield; AVH border guard units. A border guard unit of 550 men is quartered in the old Annunciation cloister. It is organized like an infantry unit and includes a heavy weapons company armed with 82 mm. mortars and Soviet Maxim heavy machine guns. This unit does not perform border guard duty. The commercial airfield is being rebuilt. The bombed ruins have been cleared away and new building construction is taking place. The weather and radio station is operating. The field is included in the Hungarian commercial air service but is being used for Soviet courier air service. The AVH security battalion is quartered in the Söptei Street barracks, opposite the airfield. It is composed of three motorized rifle companies and a heavy weapons company, with a total strength of about 600 men. Only one rifle company is stationed in the city; one is at Zalalövő on the Yugoslav border and another at Dávidháza. The companies have three platoons, of three squads each. A squad consists of 12 men. Each squad has a Steyer Diesel with 82 mm. mortars, one with two 57 mm. antitank guns, and the third with Maxim heavy machine guns. The number of AVH units in Szombathely is increasing steadily. Besides the AVH barracks in Tököli Street, a whole block of houses in Dimitrov Street has been commandeered for officers' and non-commissioned officers' quarters.

The training course lasts four months and includes individual, combat, field fortification, border guard and political instruction. The barracks at Nagyatád include a headquarters building, 20 x 40 meters; mess hall, 20 x 40 meters; ambulance and hospital building, 20 x 30 meters; stable, 20 x 60 meters; three-story enlisted men's quarters, 50 x 100 meters, with accommodations for 600 men; small enlisted men's quarters, 20 x 40 meters; supply depot; garage for 30 trucks; underground ammunition magazine, 6 x 10 meters.
